

Tuesday Morning.

Dear Louise-

Will stop ironing a few minutes and scratch a few lines as no doubt you expect it. Last night we had a very hard frost also the night before but last night finished up what was left from the night before.

The geraniums were not covered and the frost did not hurt them but last night we covered them and guess there would of been nothing left if we hadn't.

Edith[?] and I picked 3 bushel of the shell beans yesterday and shelled them before going to bed will can them this morning. there is more than three bushel left to pick today. every thing from the garden is left to bring in now.

Pop is busy catching chickens some one is coming for 30 this a.m. he sold about 15 the other day says there are about 100 roosters left.

Helen phoned after she got down town this said it was in this a.m. paper that Isabel Sampson and Homer Bruning were quietly
